SAN DIEGO – The Farmers Insurance Open is set to return to a Sunday finish next year, as the PGA TOUR's annual golf showcase at Torrey Pines Golf Course will be held January 29-February 1, 2026.

"The Farmers Insurance Open is a timeless sports and lifestyle tradition unlike any other in San Diego, and our fans can always count on spending quality time with family or mingling with friends at Torrey Pines while enjoying some amazing golf set against spectacular Pacific Ocean views," said Marty Gorsich, CEO of the Century Club of San Diego. "The good vibes from our 2025 event are still fresh in our memories, as the tournament came down to the 72nd hole in crowning our new champion."

In January, Harris English posted an 8-under-par 280 to win the 2025 Farmers Insurance Open and secure his fifth career PGA TOUR title.

In 2026, the Farmers Insurance Open will return to a Thursday start and Sunday finish. The tournament has been played on a Wednesday-Saturday schedule since 2022. CBS will broadcast the third and final rounds, with four-day coverage on GOLF Channel and PGA TOUR LIVE on ESPN+.
